

CakeHub User Guide

CakeHub connects people who want to buy cakes (customers) with bakeries and home bakers who sell them (sellers). A small team of admins looks after the platform: they verify sellers, set up subscription plans and confirm payments.

Pick the guide for your role:

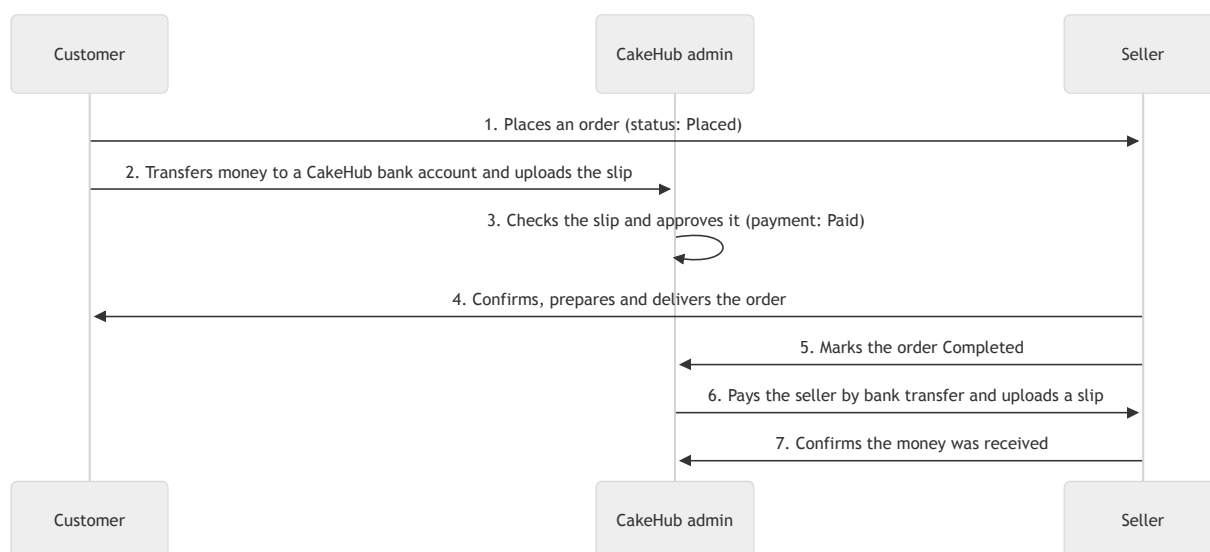

I am a...	Read	You will learn how to
Customer	Customer guide	Sign in, find cakes and bakers near you, order, pay by bank transfer, track your order and leave a review
Seller	Seller guide	Set up and verify your store, list cakes, handle orders, choose a subscription plan and receive payouts
Admin	Admin guide	Verify sellers, manage categories, plans and bank accounts, confirm payments, pay sellers and run homepage ads

All three roles sign in the same way, with Google. CakeHub never asks for or stores a password.

How an order works (all roles)

Payments on CakeHub are manual bank transfers. The customer pays the platform, an admin confirms the money arrived, the seller bakes, and the platform then pays the seller.

Important rules that follow from this:

- A seller cannot move an order forward until an admin has approved the customer's payment. Until then the seller sees Awaiting payment verification instead of the status buttons.
- Customers pay the platform, not the seller directly. Sellers are paid after an order is completed (see Payouts in the Seller guide).
- WhatsApp is always available as a second way to talk to a seller, for custom designs or questions, but the order itself is placed and paid through CakeHub.
- Prices are shown in dollars ($).

Frequently asked questions

Do I need a password? No. You sign in with your Google account. If you lose access to your Google account, recover it with Google.

Which details does CakeHub receive from Google? Only your name, email address and profile picture.

I signed in and was asked "Tell us how you'll use CakeHub". What do I choose? Choose I'm buying cakes to order cakes, or I sell cakes to open a store. Sellers also enter a business name and a WhatsApp number. This choice is made once, at your first sign-in.

Can one Google account be both a customer and a seller? No. Each account has a single role, chosen at first sign-in.

I paid but my order still says "Awaiting payment verification". An admin has to check every payment slip by hand, so this can take a little while. You will get a notification as soon as the order moves on.

I closed the page before uploading my payment slip. What now? The payment step appears right after you place the order, and the order page does not currently offer a way to return to it. Always upload the slip straight away.

How do I get notifications? Use the bell icon at the top of any page. Sellers and admins can also choose which updates arrive by email under Settings. In-app notifications always continue.

I deactivated my account. Can I sign in again? No. Deactivation signs you out and blocks sign-in until the platform administrators reactivate the account.
